

CHAPTER 1

The Quiet Terminal

At the edge of the city stood an old terminal that only opened after midnight. Mira arrived with a small bag and a ticket that showed no destination.

Every departure begins with a decision.

CHAPTER 2

A Train Without Numbers

The train had no route number. Every window reflected a different season, and every seat carried a folded note addressed to someone who had not yet arrived.

A destination can be a question.

CHAPTER 3

The Conductor's Question

The conductor asked each passenger to name one thing they were willing to leave behind. Some answered quickly. Mira remained silent.

Courage sometimes looks like a draft.

CHAPTER 4

A City of Echoes

At the first stop, streets repeated fragments of conversations from years ago. Mira heard her own voice promising to begin a project she had nearly forgotten.

The city remembers unfinished promises.

CHAPTER 5

The Return Ticket

She finally wrote her answer: fear of being seen while learning. The paper warmed in her hand and changed into a return ticket.

A return is not the same as retreat.

CHAPTER 6

Morning Platform

At sunrise the train returned to the same platform. Nothing outside had changed, but Mira stepped down carrying a notebook full of plans.
